

ABSTRACT

A method and system in which a detection is made that an operation on a register and counter block is needed. A clock signal to the register and counter block is enabled, and the operation is executed on the register and counter block through employment of the clock signal.

TOP SECRET